RISE UP ROOTED

CULTIVATING BELONGING

WORKSHOP SERIES
Designed for educators
Professional development opportunity

These workshops will focus on cultivating belonging for all students and staff. Because these workshops complement each other, although not a requirement, it is recommended to attend both. We hope to see you there!

WORKSHOP 1

Re-imagining Classroom Culture

For this workshop, we will: (1) take a self-reflective look at how each of our values, beliefs, and habits of being have been shaped by the dominant culture in which we find ourselves, (2) examine the ways in which these can lead us to unknowingly perpetuate a system of oppression within our schools, and (3) taking a step back, hone ways in which we can choose ways of being and doing that prioritizes a culture of care, connection, and belonging for all students.

We will ask ourselves: Which students most benefit from my values and the ways in which I have been conditioned to think, how am I unknowingly perpetuating a culture of separation and harm, and where can I find wiggle room in my places of influence to cultivate belonging?

WORKSHOP 2

Cultivating Belonging in Our Schools

This workshop will focus on ways to cultivate belonging for our students, specifically how microaggressions work against that goal. We will reflect on what belonging feels like for each of us, look at some different types of microaggressions, talk about what to do when microaggressions happen, including ways we can support students who are most likely to experience them.
